Behind this door are the people that comprise the 1951-52 college year - hence the title, "population." This is the story of the seniors, activities, underclassmen, faculty, in their respective departments and the administration.

The first portion of this section depicts the seniors and the underclassmen. Besides the formal pictures there are the shots of the informal activities which help to create an active school spirit. On these pages are the mementos of the activities, pictured as they actually happened, to keep alive the memories of friendships, joys and problems of life on the campus.

Another portion illustrates the faculty. These are the leaders and instructors of all who seek scholastic advancement. Twelve new members were added to the staff this year, four of whom were assigned to the new Air Force ROTC program.

The final portion portrays the personnel and the positions that they hold on the administrative staff.

Politics, social and cultural heritages and battles are the topics covered in this section of the 1952 LinC.

These pages depict the events of the hardfought political campaigns and the final outcomes.

During the post-war years, two of the social fraternities have acquired houses for fraternal living - Acacia and Phi Zeta. Four of the sororities, keeping pace with the times, have received national charters since September 1949.

Besides the social groups are the pre-professional clubs which are organized within the departments and consist of students interested in that phase of work. This phase of college life is depicted under the heading of "social and cultural heritages."

All types of sports are portrayed as "battles." True college spirit, backing the Purple Aces through victory and defeat, continues in each and every game. There is also an active schedule of intramural sports for all students who have spare time and are interested in participating. The population of Evansville College is a true sample of the people of these great United States. The college serves the attending students as a smelting pot for the many personalities.

Most of the students are from the Tri-State area: Southern Indiana, Southern Illinois, and Northwestern Kentucky. In this respect it may be aptly called the "Tri-State College." Students thrive in the friendly atmosphere which prevails in this institution of higher learning.

Besides the people from this area of the United States, color is added to the college community by students from other free countries. They come here to learn the same as we, but in reality, they are the teachers and we are the pupils.

Entering students begin a new way of life at Evansville College. Only after passing a battery of tests are they labelled "freshmen." The new entrants must strive to make the mark, and are accepted as fellow members only after demonstrating great effort.

As each school year draws to a close, the graduating seniors don their caps and gowns and with different degrees of difficulty attempt to see through the tears to bid the final good-byes to classmates, professors, and college friends. They must then be prepared to "face the future unafraid."

9-A

The basic political organization on campus is the Student Government Association which serves as the regulating body for most activities. Officers of this body are chosen by popular vote after being nominated by the faction from the social group.

Comprising the individual political factions are five sororities: Alpha Kappa Alpha, Alpha Omicron Pi, Beta Sigma Omicron, Chi Omega, and Phi Mu; the four fraternities: Acacia, Phi Zeta, Pi Epsilon Phi, and Pi Kappa; and the Independent Student Association.

During the spring quarter the social organizations collaborate and present to the students their slate of officers. For more than a week before election, the candidates hotly contest their opponents for the four offices. All the tricks in the book are utilized to get the votes of the students not associated with the organizations backing candidates. This activity is climaxed with the election, generally held on a specified Friday.

The Student Council, made up of the chairmen of nine committees that represent all phases of college life, suggests to the faculty and administration worthy changes presented by the students.

These nine chairmen lead the Assembly, Athletic, Fine Arts, Public Speech, Public Occasions, Publications, Religious Life, Social Life, and Welfare Committees. Each of these has three faculty members who work with the committee chairmen and their chosen members. All members of these Student-Faculty Federation Committees are chosen in the fall to serve for that school year.

Most of the 1952 graduating class started in September 1948 with a group about three times larger than the June group. Many obstacles have been encountered. At each stage a few of the very dear friends were forced to drop out of the parade toward graduation.

For some of the students, marriage took preference over education. For others, work was necessary to exist when the GI Bill or high school savings were exhausted.

To the Members of the Class of 1952:

If, within the halls of Evansville College, you have acquired an understanding that not material success but how you live among and for your fellow men is supremely important; that "freedom from want" and "freedom from fear" are soporific and meaningless phrases; that you will find real security only in the integrity of your own soul and true happiness only in the realization that you have measured up to the fullness of the stature of your individual, Godgiven personality; then, surely, as you go out into a grim and troubled world, you will "face the future unafraid" and achieve the success and happiness which the trustees, the faculty and your fellow alumni wish for you all.

The groundwork for student government was laid last spring with the election of the SGA officers. The officers chosen by vote of the student body are Robert Northerner, president; Ray Bawel, vice president; Eunice Maier, secretary; and Joyce Wiggers, treasurer.

Upon the shoulders of these four students rests a great responsibility. Their job is to solve or appoint assistants to solve the problems of the entire student body.

Apprentice politicians is the theme of the first part of the lower half of the dutch door issue of the LinC, and a part of the permanent record of your college days in the year 1951-52.

This section of the book shows how the men and women of Evansville College have solved their governmental problems, problems which arise among themselves and between the students and administration.

Examples of this include Men's Council, Women's Council, National Panhellenic Conference, and the newly formed Interfraternity Council. Also included are the Union Management Board and the Student Council.

Members of the first group govern relations between students and between student Greek-letter social organizations. In the latter group, the Board is composed of the elected chairmen of the Union committees and formulates Union policies. Chairmen of student-faculty federation committees, appointed by the Student Government Association president, are members of the Council. The Council is the representative body of S.G.A.

POST-WAR COMPLETION of the Engineering-Science Building makes possible for many students to use the most modern methods and equipment in conducting experiments in the science field. As a result of this addition to the college, the science department has been rated among the better schools in the state. Here Dick Lyons and Charles Kellough are conducting an experiment with an apparatus designed to measure ratio of charge to mass of an electron.

Social sororities at Evansville College have followed the pace set by Beta Sigma Omicron in September 1949. Their national affiliation has spread to the other four organizations.

BSO was followed, after a lapse by the Castalians who were accepted into the threshold of Alpha Omicron Pi. Very shortly afterward the "Ivy Leaf Interest Group" received their charter and were taken into Alpha Kappa Alpha.

Gamma Epsilon Sigma followed to national affiliation by changing their name to Chi Omega. Theta Sigma took their place in the ranks on January 6, 1952 when they officially became Phi Mu.

Sororities on the campus at Evansville function as a group of organizations and as a body of women students working together attempting to reach their specific goals. Each organization is composed of a selected group of interested and qualified girls that are bound together by bonds of loyalty, congeniality, leadership and other high ideals.

Countless benefits are at the fingertips of active sorority members. By the very nature of each group, students develop academically and socially in a stimulating atmosphere. The cultivation of additional friendships within the group adds to the social character of each girl. Unlimited contacts are made because of her membership with the specific sorority.

Tolerance, understanding, and adaptability are lessons that are learned by active participation in the functions of the organization. Girls, upon becoming pledges, are taught by the members to respect the opinions of others. Through constructive criticism and praise, the students learn to take their places among those who are striving to reach a comparable goal. All sorority life on campus is nationally affiliated and, in a sense, supervised.

Sorority life develops for participating students a group loyalty that is invaluable after graduation. Basically the ability to live, work, and play with others is the lesson learned

ALPHA PHI Omega's Ugly Man Contest ends each year on the eve of the homecoming football game. Votes are cast by the students at a penny per vote. Here two members of the sorority, Mary Coleman and Imogene Merritt (standing) assist some members of the Ivy Leaf Society. Members of the Ivy Leaf Society are: (seated) Jane Kendall, Emma Green, Delores Thompson, Pernella Gaines, and Annie Stone.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA

Alpha Kappa Alpha came to the Evansville campus June 2, 1950. It is among the oldest sororities for negro women. Beta Iota chapter was organized from an "Interest group" begun in 1950 under the leadership of Miss Willi Effie Thomas, a graduate soror, and Miss Agnes Mann.

Among the activities of Beta Iota chapter have been the presentation of concerts and dance programs, and a picnic at Mesker Park honoring girls of the 1951 high school graduating class. The picnic was held with the idea of introducing Alpha Kappa Alpha to the community as well as to the graduating high school students.

Besides helping his wife with the household duties and caring for his daughter, Susan, at intervals; he works an eight hour shift at International Harvester from 3:30 p.m. to midnight.

His job is that of a shop clerk in the plant engineering department. He functions in one phase of the maintenance control program in dispatching repairmen to jobs throughout the plant and keeping a record of the jobs completed on the various machines.

MEMBERS OF Alpha Omicron Pi aim their bows and arrows at the apple on the head of a fellow member. The float was one of about 40 units in the football homecoming parade.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

Chi Lambda Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi became a part of Evansville College on June 10, 1951, following the announcement of the affiliation of the Castalian Sorority with AOPi at the Rose Formal. Installation took place in the Union Building with four national officers present. AOPi was the second national sorority to come on campus.

The primary work of Alpha Omicron Pi is the material and financial support of the Frontier Nursing Service in Kentucky. AOPi also assists in public relations in the school and community. The sorority's Ruby Fund is a vital part of this work, and is maintained by every active and alumnae chapter.

Four girls were pledged in the fall quarter, and fall and winter rush were counted among the year's important activities. AOPi built a homecoming float and had an annual Christmas party for the Gamma Deltas. Among the members this year were included the Homecoming Queen, the Secretary of the senior class, a member of Who's Who, and a cheerleader. Two delegates were sent to the biennial convention in Glenwood Springs, Colorado.

ALPHA OMICRON Pi, like the other sororities, picks many of the new members from Gamma Delta, a freshman organization that functions only during the fall quarter. A Christmas party is given by the AOP's each year to cultivate their relationships with the prospective members. Here in the midst of a pajama party the girls pause for a box lunch.

ONE OF the highlights of the year for each sorority is the rush party that is given for the members of Gamma Delta, the sorority for freshman girls. By showing interest in Gamma Delta, they show interest in college social life. Here Santa Claus is giving presents to Gamma Deltas as guests of Alpha Omicron Pi.

The Beta Theta chapter of Beta Sigma Omicron, the first national sorority on the Evansville College campus, was installed in September 1949. From a colony of thirteen girls, the chapter has grown to a full-sized and very active sorority.

The Pine Mountain Settlement in Harlan County, Kentucky, is the sorority's philanthropic project. This year the chapter sent a monetary gift and Christmas packages for those in the hospital there.

At Evansville College the Beta Sigs are active in all phases of campus life. In the Student Government Association, Choir, Band, Crescent, Thespians, Union Management Board, Women's Council, Women's Athletic Association, and various honorary societies Beta Sigs take an active part. The sorority has been publicly recognized for its scholastic and athletic achievements and other campus activities, both by the college and by the national sorority.

Byparticipation in these activities, Beta Sigma Omicron is aiding the growth and progress of Evansville College.

BETA SIGMA Omicron members boosted the morale of the team and the spectators for the football homecoming game with their merry-go-round float.

Chi Epsilon Chapter of Chi Omega was installed at Evansville College in September, 1951.

Chi Omega was founded in 1895 at the University of Arkansas and has grown throughout the United States until there are now 112 chapters. The fraternity is known for its extensive research projects, its service fund, and the National Achievement Award.

Awards of the year included the Community Chest Drive Trophy and the Chi O-Beta Sigma Omicron winning of the Revlon Rose Bowl Game Trophy.

Special activities of the year were the homecoming float and campus display, the traditional Kiddle Party entertaining the Gamma Deltas, and the Chi O's own Christmas party.

Members of Chi Epsilon Chapter are represented in Who's Who in American Colleges and Colleges and Universities, on the Student Council, Panhellenic Council, Women's Council, Union Management Board, in the College Choir and on All-Campus Committees.

CHI OMEGANS celebrate their acceptance into the national organization from the old name of Gamma Epsilon Sigma. Marianna Cubbison was president of the organization when it became the fourth sorority on the campus to have national affiliations.

THEME OF homecoming float for the members of Phi Mu was "Lure Em On, Aces." At homecoming the Phi Mu sorority was Theta Sigma before receiving national affiliation and recognition.

Phi Mu Sorority, although the youngest national group on campus, has extended its activities as a result of the affiliation with a national fraternity. The former Theta Sigmas became pledges of Phi Mu January 6, 1952 after celebrating their 29th birthday.

Installation followed in March with the Delta Lambda chapter at Evansville College becoming Phi Mu's centennial chapter. Phi Mu is the second oldest social sorority in the nation, being founded March 4, 1852.

Rushparties have occupied most of the Phi Mu's activities this year as engineered by Pat Schymik, rush captain. "Davy Jones Locker" was the theme of the fall rush party. Jo Freshley, candidate for football queen, also received the sorority's scholarship award. The Senior Achievement Award was presented to Pat Schymik. Joyce Wiggers was the spring formal chairman.

AT THE beginning of the fall quarter the Air Force ROTC unit had moved into their offices on campus. Five class rooms were occupied for office space and one wing of the class room building was converted into a storeroom for supplies. During the winter quarter the Arnold Air Society was organized, the Rifle Team worked toward perfection at the range in the armory, and the Drum and Bugle Corps beat out the music for the squadrons as they began marching. Members of the color guard are: (left to right) Ronald Christian, Philip Shannon, and Bill Pickle.

PHI MU officers who guided the other girls to national affiliation are: (left to right) Jo Etta Brinkley, vice-president, Joann Stocke, president, and Lynda Lou Williamson, treasurer. Marcella Mach, chosen to serve as secretary, was not in the picture.

Gamma Delta is an organization for enthusiastic freshman girls. The membership this year reached the peak of forty-two girls.

Pat Whitehead, past president, was advisor. The other officers were Norma Jean Robertson, president; and Sharon Hurst, secretary-treasurer.

Gamma Delta is very active in most of the organized activities on campus. A very clever skit was presented on Dad's Day. The skit showed how college girls impose on their fathers.

The theme "Beat 'Em Up Aces" was used for the Homecoming float. It was illustrated by a huge bowl with two chefs holding an equally large spoon.

Various beauty honors have been won by Gamma Delta members. The Phi Zeta Sweetheart, Icebreaker Queen, and others were members of Gamma Delta.

A very successful candy-cookie sale was sponsored by Gamma Delta. A donation was made to Santa's Helpers.

The members were entertained by all the sororities on campus. In return Gamma Delta gave a Christmas Party to which all came dressed as gifts.

GAMMA DELTA, a freshman sorority that functions only during the fall quarter each year, introduces incoming girls to the social strata on campus. Here some of the girls are attending a party given for them by one of the social organizations.

CARL KLINGELHOEFER, a graduating senior, had to work his way through college. Here he is shown using a halite torch testing the inner liners of an International Harvester freezer chest.

Fraternity history on campus would fill manypages if it were compiled into a volume. The multitude of problems that have been faced and conquered would make a large chapter.

The older organizations that came from Moore's Hill College proceeded through the gantlets of the years of war, progress and depression.

Now with the over-all enrollment on the decline the chain is again dragging heavily. Fraternity members at this point, more than ever, must lift their eyes to the problems at hand and "face the future unafraid."

Man is a gregarious creature. Social fraternities function to fulfill this need.

On the campus at Evansville, there are four such organizations: Acacia, Phi Zeta, Pi Epsilon Phi (Philo), and Pi Kappa. Students who do not desire to join a fraternity may affiliate themselves with the Independent Students Association.

Not only do the fraternities and the I.S.A. provide fellowship for men students, but they also play an important part in campus life. On the shoulders of these organizations rest the structure of student government and much of the campus social life.

Many of the campus social events and activities of interest are the result of fraternity action. Among these are the Phi Zeta Sweetheart Dance and the Philo Blackouts.

Fraternities and the I.S.A. perform a great service for the individual members as well as a service for the school and the student body as a whole.

TRUE FRATERNAL living comes only with a fraternity owned house. Here five loyal Acacians review the suggestions made by a local architect on the original house plans submitted to him for an estimate. The Acacians are: John E. Robinson, Jr., Al Colvin, Paul Swinney, John Wilson, and Tom Carter.

Moving into the second year of activities as a national fraternity, Acacia is steadily climbing up the ladder of progress.

Despite the fact that the college enrollment has dropped noticeably, Acacia is not suffering from a lack of manpower. With the addition of eight new actives in the fall quarter, many goals have been achieved.

Redecoration of the interior of the house, was completed with the return of students from the Christmas vacation.

In the fall of 1950 a cafeteria program was instituted for the members and friends. This program is still flourishing.

Thus the men of Acacia, the youngest of all fraternities on the campus, strive to uphold and perpetuate their ideals and principles.

Indeed, the youth of ACACIA look to the future, unafraid.

"GUILTY" BY Chi Omega, "Tiny Tidbits of the Twenties" by the Newman Club, "The Dummy Speaks" by Phi Mu, and "The Shrimp Boats Have Landed" by Phi Zeta are the topics chosen by the respective organizations for the presentation of Kampus Kapers in the Great Hall of the Union. Participants here are: (seated) Arthur Weiss, Suzette Spiegel, Charles Hubbs, and Dave Evrard, Newman Club; (standing) Virginia Caluya, Phi Mu, Carolyn Neucks, Chi Omega, Billy Joe Walters and John Moening, Phi Zeta, Lois and Donald Folz and Joyce Hamel also from the Newman Club skit.

FOR THE members of Phi Zeta and many other socially minded people on campus, the annual Phi Zeta Sweetheart Dance is a gala affair. Each year five alumns at the dance choose the sweetheart from all the girls present. Attendants to the sweetheart on stage at the armory are: (left to right) Diane Bentley, Sharon Meier, Phi Zeta Sweetheart Pat Harris, Ethel Hamilton, and Helen Umbach.

Phi Zeta interests this year were primarily directed towards redecorating and improvement of fraternity house furnishings. The fraternity acquired the large brick residence at 1901 Lincoln Avenue, two years ago.

During the fall quarter, the Phi Zeta entry won first place in the homecoming float parade. Members designed and constructed a 16-foot football player with a moveable arm which kept dousing a football player in a tar barrel.

Already sponsor of the annual Sweetheart dance, top campus social event of the pre-Christmas calendar, the fraternity decided to make the 1951 spring card party an annual affair. The Phi Zeta spring formal is the annual formal dinner-dance for the membership.

The fraternity was unfortunate to lose a sponsor, Dr. Robert Buell, who was recalled to government service. Clifford Kraft and Howard Hill, both faculty sponsors, resigned because of heavy faculty duties and Marvin Hartig was elected sponsor.

PIEPSILON Phi's homecoming float receives the finishing touches while it waits for the parade to start from the college campus. The Philo float received honorable mention in the parade that wound through the heart of Evansville to Reitz Bowl where the Purple Aces beat the Eastern Kentucky Maroons, 7-6.

In step with the college itself, Pi Epsilon Phi, is celebrating its 98th year. The organization is 98 years old despite the fact that the name of Pi Epsilon Phi has been used only since 1919 when the college moved here from Moores Hill. While at Moores Hill the Philos were known as the Philomathean Literary Society.

At Evansville College another year has been chocked full of activities. The 1951 edition of the Philo Blackouts, an annual variety show, was a great success.

Philo-Phi Zeta football game ended with the Philos in front 24 to 0. This was the third consecutive win and twelve victories in fourteen contests.

Pi Epsilon Phi swept to the top in the SGA and class officer elections by putting Bob Northerner in as SGA president and three other Philos occupy the presidential throne of their respective classes.

COOK'S BARBECUE, Weinbach at Ravenswood, has a special meaning for Evansville College students. It means homemade pies, hickory smoked pork barbecue sandwiches and ribs, and other tasty sandwiches and salads. Every day students make the trip to Cook's, for it's close enough and the service quick enough to enable them to get back to classes in plenty of time.

WINTER QUARTER pledging was an event long to be remembered by many of the social minded men on campus. Here some members of Pi Epsilon Phi gather to greet and shake hands with a pledge. From left to right they are: Robert Wilkie, Don Austin, John Kightly shaking hands with pledge, Charles Hall, Don Bernhardt patting the pledge on the back, and Roger Garrett. OFFICERS FOR the Pi Kappa fraternity were elected in the Club Room of the Union on January 24. Members chosen to lead the group for the last half of the year are: (seated) Ray Fruehwald, Perry Strasser, president, James Sterrett, and Russell Noffke; (standing) Joe Emerson, Clarence Werzner, and Paul Phelps.

In the latter part of 1946, after the great influx of returning veterans, the need for another fraternity was felt. Pi Kappa grew out of this feeling. Charles Flicek, the first president, and Charles Van Winkle are credited for having done the initial organizing.

A policy was adopted which eliminated all social, racial and religious prejudices. It was also decided that in initiation ceremonies there would be no hazing. Initiations were confined to projects of a constructive nature and designed for the betterment of Evansville College.

The fraternity's first project was an extension of the side-walk from the Administration Building to the old cafeteria. Another project was cleaning out a building to provide an office for the ground superintendent.

It was the intention of the fraternity to have a small, social organization stressing fellowship rather than political aims. For this reason it has always had a small membership. SPRINGSTUN, W. RUSSELL JR. -- A. B., Biology; Indiana University, 1-2; Dean's List, 3; Pre-Med, 3-4, Vice President, 4.

"Pantaloons Mow Down Maroons," urged the Independent Students Association.

The Aces followed their advice and rolled over Eastern Kentucky in the home-coming game November 3. The LINC photographer snapped the picture as it was ready to roll into position for the long parade through the city to Reitz Bowl.

The Independent Student Association, a co-educational social organization, is open to students of both sexes. Even though the organization is classed with the social clan, the basic function is to serve as an outlet for students who do not wish to become affiliated with the Greeks.

Casualties have been inflicted on the independents this year as far as membership is concerned but they have weathered the storm. The decrease in enrollment has taken a toll on the membership but a great deal of spirit and activity remains within the mem-

A certain amount of allegiance and interest is instilled within the members so that they can fulfill the desire and the basic reasons for affiliating with the group.

Dances, parties, and projects throughout the year highlights the activities of the organization. During the winter quarter, a square dance was sponsored by the independents. Keeping in line with the changing times, they be-lieve that this sort of function adds to the social indoctrination of the individual student.

Three important events of the past year on Evansville College campus are the organization of the Inter-Fraternity Council, the organization of the National Panhellenic Conference, and improved dissemination of news about Student Government Association activities.

The Inter-Fraternity Council was organized by the male social fraternities. It is composed of delegates from each of the four social organizations. The council functions to promote co-operation between fraternities and to help maintain good relationships between the individual fraternities and the fraternities and unorganized students.

Equally important is the National Panhellenic Conference, which was formed in September just prior to the commencement of the academic year. It is the body governing activities of social sororities and women's social fraternities.

Frequent publication of a news bulletin containing news of the results of committee meetings has kept students informed of progress and made the path more smooth.

One of the chief functions of a college or university is teaching people how to live as well as how to make a living. Evansville College is not interested only in teaching its students a specific set of skills and nothing more. The college attempts to educate "the whole person."

Such education is achieved both in and out of class. Studies that include "general education" help to reach this goal, and activities through clubs and organizations on the campus play a vital part. Students who are taught only how to work with their hands cannot be said to be wholly educated. Evansville College strives to educate not only engineers or teachers or journalists but also human beings who will later take a more active part in the community in which they may reside.

Nearly forty organizations and clubs on the campus, all with faculty supervision, offer unlimited opportunity for students to get acquainted with one another, to develop leadership, and to work with others of like interests.

YOST, CLAUDE -- B. S., Business Administration; William & Mary College; Beta Alpha Kappa, 3-4, Secretary, 4; Phi Zeta, 3-4; Union Bowling League, 3.

Academic participation can, to a degree be enforced. The social and cultural affiliations, on the other hand can only be encouraged, despite their importance to the over-all education of the student.

Students who do outstanding work in any particular field or fields are given due recognition. Honor societies on the campus include Pi Delta Epsilon, journalism; Pi Gamma Mu, social science; Phi Beta Chi, natural science; Sigma Alpha Iota, music, and Sigma Pi Sigma, physics.

Organizations of the "roundtable" play a vital part in the proper function of the college. Along the road to progress, the department of education laid the groundwork to change the Association of Childhood Education to the Future Teachers of America.

Some other organizations have dropped from the ranks with the decrease in enrollment but more vigorous activity among those remaining is the result. Most of the academic departments in the college are represented in this portion of the yearbook by active organizations.

The music department enjoys more than an incidental few organizations. More basically music organizations function actively than in any other department. Several Greek letter fraternities and clubs are among those not mentioned or shown.

Social functions for the groups tend, naturally, to bind the students into the organization of the department. Mem-bership also tends to prepare the naturally less aggressive student for student affiliations, both by making closer contacts and by molding the individual's character to get along more easily with people.

THE CRESCENT, a weekly student publication that is published by and for the students on campus, requires a lot of work from a few people. An insufficient number of students on the staff is the problem that stared John A. Boyd, faculty advisor, in the face this year. CRESCENT staff members for the fall quarter are: (seated)

Edmond Fly, Donald Bernhardt, Shirley Balding, Sharon Hurst, and Marvin Fox, CRESCENT editor; (standing) Robert Green, O. Franklin Beumer, Emmalouise Seegmueller, John A. Boyd (faculty), Bill Lord, and Mahmut Ozan.

1952 a crucial year

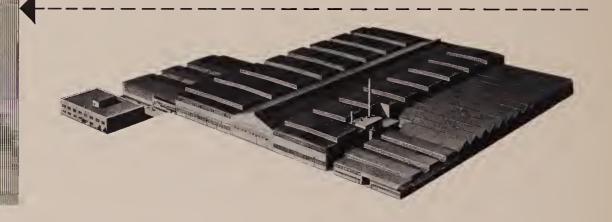

The college senior — climaxing his collegiate career in 1952 — will find himself an important factor in the future of America.

Whether he becomes a member of the Armed Services . . . or enters an industry girding itself for Defense he will find that he has matured at a crucial time — a time important to him and to his country.

International Steel, too, realizes that these are critical times.

Its work for armament and defense — plus its activities for civilian customers when schedules permit . . . all contribute to making this a better nation to live in . . . to dream in . . . to grow up in.

STEEL CO. EVANSVILLE, IND.

MARVIN FOX, 1951-52 editor of the CRESCENT was forced to work long hours after most students had forgotten about the day at college. Even when this picture was taken, he was struggling to finish checking stories that were almost due at the print shop, Krieger-Ragsdale.

DOYLE MATTESON, business manager of the CRES-CENT, undertook a man-sized job when he started selling ads and paying bills for the CRESCENT. Long hours of work, both downtown and at his desk in the CRESCENT office paid off for the student body with six pages in the CRESCENT instead of four.

Of the four strata of underclassmen, approximately 200 have sufficient credit to graduate in June. A few others will fulfill the requirements in August. This graduating class, along with the others since the war, will graduate into a world of "war prosperity." For the others who have a year or years to study before graduation, a great deal of stamina is required to surge ahead into a future that is gradually growing less and less promising.

Social and cultural differences may be divided into four general classifications or strata: freshmen, sophomore, junior, and senior. Limits of the strata, from sophomore through senior, are defined by a certain number of required hours of credit. Occasionally one finds a student who does not fit into any particular group; he is designated as unclassified and remains as such until further developments occur.

The senior instructs the junior in various matters including arrangement for commencement and its corollary activities. A sophomore trains to undertake junior interests by acquiring a broader experience in social and cultural activities of the college and an increased participation in college life. Another equally important task of the sophomore is to train the freshman for the minor positions in college activities, preparatory to accepting more responsible jobs, and aiding them to adjust themselves to the new way of life.

AFTER A great deal of study and consideration the Thespians, under the direction of Howard A. Hill, decided to produce during the fall quarter, "The Gorilla." Long hours of practice and many costumes were necessary to lead to this scene. Thespians are: Joe Emerson, Wendell Long, John Wilson, Carolyn Murray, Bob Rundell, and Carl Klingelhoefer. In view of the noted past performances, the Thespians were received by Alpha Psi Omega, a national dramatic society.

WITH THE coming of spring, students move out of the Union to the fresh air. Juniors are no exception. Here the LinC photographer caught a half dozen members of the junior class in front of the Union. The conversation may be censored or serious. At any rate the students are: Billie Jean Miller, Joyce Wiggers, and Vera Robinson; (on the ledge) Kenneth Hutchinson, Leo Kranawetter, and Don Rausch.

louise Seegmueller, Donald Plane, Janice Hill, Jeanette Yates (Medea), Helen Umbach, and Wendell Long. The play was well received and was produced five consecutive nights from the stage in the auditorium.

STUDENTS ENROLLED in home economics courses utilize the modern facilities in the sewing room and the four-unit kitchen. The department was remodeled and redecorated two years ago and is now the most attractive laboratory on campus. Some members of the Home Eco-

DURING THE early part of the spring quarter, some of the freshmen planned a spring picnic for the freshman class. According to the calendar, plans were made in a nearby grocery store. Jimmy Durante seems to be encouraging the group. Doris Walter, Sharon Hurst, Jack Combs, Rosemarie Wiseman, and Don Folz are the students who are checking on prices of different items to present the estimated cost to the class at a later date.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS were resounding around the room when this picture of the Madrigal Singers was taken. These nine students replace two groups that functioned on campus last year as the Men's and Women's Glee Club.

Senior class activities began with a rumble in the fall and thundered to the climax of commencement in June. Ed Wessel, class president, appointed the following committee chairmen to help arrange commencement: Dave Millen, gift; Jim Kinney, prom; Les Robbins, senior picnic; Marion Tuttle, invitations; Mary Lannert, ring; Bob Northerner, decorations, and Willie Sakel, recreation.

Juniors, led by Kenneth Hutchinson, president, prepared themselves to assume the mantle of leadership from the seniors.

Sophomore activities included serving as counsellors for the incoming freshmen. The sophomores will be the Centennial Class of the college. They will be graduated in 1954, 100 years after the founding of Moore's Hill College, which was the predecessor of Evansville College.

For the class of 1955, a new course was started in the fall. The course requires the freshmen to attend the convocation each Tuesday and is generally highlighted by a well-known speaker.

Members of the faculty are depicted by their departments under the heading, "Wielders of the Words of Wisdom."

The "wielders" are those unsung heroes who have accepted underpaid teaching appointments in an effort to train students in their respective professions.

Despite the many jibes and remarks, the fact remains that without the endless list of sacrifices made by professors a college education would be an impossibility.

Fewer college students enrolled after the influx of returning veterans resulted in changes in the faculty in most departments.

In an attempt to "balance the budget" with the inevitable decrease in income and the increase in operating costs, the services of several professors were terminated. Other professors went on leaves of absence to continue work on their degrees or to serve special assignments with the government.

After the final tally was taken, eight more professors were hired in the different departments and the four air corps officers in the R O T C unit were given faculty status.

The academic standing of the college was at stake with a decrease in the total number of "wielders." This problem fell, for the most part, on the shoulders of President Lincoln B. Hale. With many students already placed in positions of responsibility it can be emphatically stated that the professors chosen to instruct the students deserve a hearty handshake for a job "well done."

THIS SCENE of color and barbaric abandon is from the second act of the operetta, "Prince Igor" and portrays the dance of the slaves. The prince, after being captured by the chief of the Polovetski tribe tries to console his prisoner, Prince Igor, by providing entertainment for him. "Prince Igor" was written by Borodin, one of the "Russian Five," who attempted to portray historical legends of the early barbaric days of the Czars. Thomas Clark portrayed Prince Igor. The part of the Khan was played by Joe Emerson.

IN SEPTEMBER a new phase of college life was introduced on campus with the coming of the Air Force R O T C unit. Instructors in the Air Force blue are: (left to right, seated) Major Frank Meek, Lieut. Col. Donald Cluxton, commanding officer, Major Evan Bruner, and Captain Wayne Bruns; (standing) S/Sgt. Charles Duffy, T/Sgt. William Curley, M/Sgt. Edsel Bartle, M/Sgt. Burley Barnes, and M/Sgt. Norman Dail.

The Air Force R O T C unit made its initial appearance on the campus this fall. It wasn't until the winter quarter, however, that the Air Force blue blossomed forth. Since then the boys in blue have become an accepted part of college campus.

The group made its first appearance as a complete unit in January at the flagpole dedication on the front campus. In April an inspection and review was held by visiting Air Force officials to determine the progress made by the unit.

The social life consisted mainly of the Military Ball. The success of the Ball this year assures its continuance as one of the biggest dances held on the campus each year.

HUMANITIES

FLORENCE KEVE seems to be thinking seriously on some problem with which she is confronted as the only professor in the art department. Since much of her work is with students in the field of education, her problems are greater to fulfill their requirement with their practice teaching schedules. In the background are some of the finished products of her art students.

These are the three fold aims of the art department: to give students in the education field a background of art procedures, to provide a cultural background for all students, and to provide varied classes for those students major-

WAHNITA DELONG, head of the English department, seems to have something amusing to say to her assisting faculty members. Other members of the department are: Charlotte Stephens (seated right), Daniel Boughner, Howard Hill, John Boyd, and A. C. Spence.

ENGLISH

Few departments in the college have as wide an acquaintance with the students as the English department. Every student is required to take several courses from the department during his college career.

The department reaches many residents in Evansville and the Tri-State area through The Crescent and The LinC, student publications, and WEVC, the college radio station. The department is always ready to help members of the community.

During the past year WEVC carried a morning program produced for use in Evansville public schools.

BREAKFAST IN the Union was the occasion for this meeting of members of the Methodist Student Movement. Dr. Frank Hamilton (standing left of center) was the speaker for the breakfast. Dr. Hamilton is pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church. The Methodist Student Movement is sponsored by the Indiana Conference of Methodist Churches and James Morlock is faculty advisor.

ATTEMPTING TO relax after a busy day of classes and publication problems at the college, John Boyd (center), journalism professor, finds himself reading Uncle Remus to the children while Mrs. Boyd finishes in the kitchen. The younger Boyds are Bob (left) and Betty.

ACADEMIC INTERESTS take preference during the day for these professors in the English department. After classes, however, their interests change momentarily from correct English spoken the right way to the collection of antique dishes. Head of the department is Wahnita DeLong (left) and Pearle LeCompte, associate professor of speech (right).

STUDENTS INTERESTED in participating in active religious life on campus have an opportunity to join the Student Christian Association. Some of the members are: Wahnita DeLong (faculty), Martha Powell, June Wallace, Patricia Winter, Dorothy Atkinson, Alice Jones, Carol Chenoweth, Barbara Shuel, Ruth Smith, and Doris Kapperman; (second row) Norma Jean Robertson, Anita Barrett, Ned Conder, Lewis Plane, Richard Topper, John Spayd, Mearl Culver (faculty), Janice Morgan, Karl Mc-Clure, and V. W. Maves (faculty); (third row) Don Bassett, Virgil Kuhlenschmidt, Marion Gaston, Leslie Mc-Kown, and Robert Coleman.

F. WOODY WERKING, head of the department of modern language, and Gertrude Leich, assistant professor of Spanish, seem to be enjoying books in their respective languages of specialization. The two professors offer sufficient courses for a major in German, French and Spanish. Russian is offered in the evening college.

MODERN LANGUAGE

Forty-six courses in French, German, Italian, Spanish, Greek, and Latin are offered by the department of modern languages. These include a study in phonetics and pronunciation of French, German, and Italian; and Greek and Latin derivatives in scientific terminology.

A minimum of thirty-eight hours in a given language constitutes a major in that language. Minors must have thirty-two hours.

Besides grammatical and reading exercises, students in this department are given the opportunity to listen to recordings of the language which they are studying.

The students who speak other languages are more useful to society today, because persons who speak other languages are only a few hours away.

THE MUSIC department, together with the Preparatory Music School, has one of the largest number of faculty on its staff. Over thirty instructors do everything possible to aid public relations for the college. The choir, band, and orchestra give many programs for community organizations during the year, and each spring the band and choir tour this area to further people's interests in music. Pictured here are some of the faculty. They are:

PI GAMMA Mu, an honorary social science fraternity, requires all the members to have A's and B's in the courses taken. Members here are: (front row) Paul Carter, Larry Pogue, Paul Royster, Wendell Taylor, Wade David (faculty), Dean Long (faculty), and Claude Slusher: (back row) Ray Fruehwald, Albert Gross, V.W.

Maves (faculty), Lawrence Anderson (faculty) James Julian (faculty), A. B. Cope (faculty), and William Affolder (faculty). This group is unusual in that the requirements for membership are among the highest of all organizations on campus.

PHILOSOPHY, RELIGION

Many people believe that democracy cannot survive unless its citizens understand the philosophy of religion and the ethical standards out of which democracy arose. The department of philosophy and religion provides courses that help students to become alumni who are successful in their personal lives. Satisfied alumni recommend the college to prospective students. The department attracts students preparing for religious vocations by offering pre-professional courses.

The department receives some help from those who approve of it as a vital part of the educational program.

COLLEGE STUDENTS who have previously been members of the Girl Scouts have an opportunity to associate with other girls with like interests by joining Alpha Phi Delta. This group functions on many occasions with Alpha Phi Omega the Boy Scout organization. Some of the members are: (left to right, crouched) Marlene Day, Eloise Schmitz, Pat Martin, and Selma Douglas; (standing) Mary Jean Lockwood, Darlene Besing, Marilyn Harper, Dorothy Frohbieter, Elizabeth Lockwood, and Dorothy McNeely.

ALPHA PHI Omega, the national service fraternity on campus, has membership of students who have previously been Boy Scouts and enjoy scouting fellowship. Members here are: (front row) Al Colvin, Marion Tuttle, Norman O. Long (faculty), Robert Donham, and Naion Gray; (back row) Philip Seibert, Bill Roth, Al Hardin, president of APO, Cliff Kraft (faculty), and Robert Schroeder.

SCIENCES

Students who plan to enter fields of medicine, dentistry, nursing, optometry, veterinary medicine, and other medical sciences are, trained in the biology department. It also pertains to fields leading to high school teaching, graduate work leading to college teaching, work in industrial research laboratories, and positions in biological fields with the state and federal governments.

The department also co-operates with two city hospitals in offering a degree in medical technology.

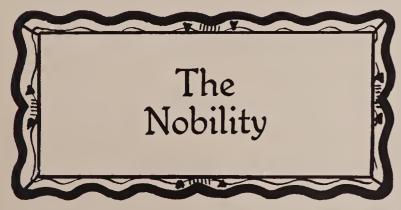

During the past year the biology department has expanded through gifts. These include two new hebarium cases which permit permanent plant material storage, and makes possible a botany museum on campus. A kymograph for the study of heart and muscle physiology, a plaster heart model and osteological equipment are other gifts in the department.

IN THE biology department there are three faculty members, all with a varied and long range background in their field. The only new member in the department this year is Virginia Weigel who comes here from Illinois. Charles Robertson (left) and Donald Dunham (right) are the other professors.

BIOLOGY

Of the twenty-five students who are honored by this section of the yearbook, forty-five units of honor are filled. Since several of these students must be honored in more than one group, the honor is that much greater.

Elizabeth Lockwood is honored in each of the four groups of "nobility." Students chosen for three of the four groups are: Pat Bates, Ray Bawel, Marianna Cubbison, Ray Fruehwald, and Emmalouise Seegmueller.

The highest honors given students at Evansville College is to be elected to membership in the Campus Leaders, Campus Notables, Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities, or Special Recognition.

Campus Leaders and Campus Notables are nominated by a representative student committee and elected by a faculty committee. No more than seven per cent of each graduating class shall be honored as Notables, although two of the Notables may be juniors. Three men and three women from the senior class are selected as Campus Leaders.

Both juniors and seniors are eligible for Who's Who, and are selected by a committee of faculty members. Candidates are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, participation in extracurricular activities, character, and indication of future usefulness in business and society.

Special Recognition is given to students who have been on the Dean's List five or more times while in college.

THREE PROFESSORS and two student instructors made up the faculty in the chemistry department. James Small and Lois Winkler (seated) are the student instructors. Alvin Strickler, head of the department (seated right center), and Norman O. Long (with glasses) and Andrew Sherockman (standing) are the full-fledged professors. The trophy on the desk was presented to Dr. Strickler for 30 year's service at the college.

CHEMISTRY

The important work in the chemistry department has been to provide a chemistry background necessary in engineering, medicine, home economics and others. The departmental facilities are always available to industry and it has contributed immensely to the early development of several of Evans ville's leading businesses.

Despite the departmental growth, it has never lost sight of the original aim to make chemistry available to the layman as well as to the scientist.

CAMPUS LEADERS

Perhaps the highest honor that is granted a student is to be chosen a campus leader. It indicates that the student has given far more than required by the normal load of college activities.

Students and faculty both have a voice in the selection of the six leaders. A 12-member committee, appointed by the Student Council, nominates three times as many persons as are finally selected as leaders. Faculty members vote on the candidates. The three men and three women who receive the highest number of faculty votes become Campus Leaders.

Criteria for selection include adequate vocational skill, excellent health habits, worthy recreational faculties, grace in social fellowship, love of beauty, attainment of wisdom, spiritual aspiration, and financial responsibility.

The engineering department offers degrees in four specialized fields. They include: industrial, refrigeration, electronics, and plastics. The first two are under the engineering department, the last two are under the joint supervision of the engineering, physics and the chemistry departments.

The chief aim of the engineering department is to train young men for technical, managerial, and executive careers in industry.

A vital part of this department is the engineering club which has obtained speakers and exhibits pertaining to their field which has added greatly to this continually growing department. WORKING ALONG with the other departments, the engineering department also functioned this year with a reduced number on the faculty and at the same time tried to maintain high standards of education. Engineering faculty members are: (left to right) William Hartsaw, John Kronsbein, head of the department, and E. Leon Dunning.

STUDENTS WHO are chosen as campus notables have to fulfill the seven virtues as shown in the seal of the college. These students are the choice of two committees, one of students and the other of faculty members. Campus notables are: (front row, left to right) Billie Jean Miller, Emmalouise Seegmueller, Marianna Cubbison,

CAMPUS NOTABLES

FUNCTIONING TO further sports for both the men and women students on campus are the faculty members of the health and physical education department. Posed here in front of the athletic building are: (left to right) Don Ping, Paul Beck, Ida Stieler, and Arad McCutchan.

HEALTH, PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Physical education being paramount with the intellectual development of students, an extensive program of athletics has been set up for both men and women.

The athletic department claims a full schedule of the usual theory and practice courses in the athletic field.

A varied program includes kinesiology; health and safety; recreation; diagnosis, care and treatment of athletic injuries; and individual sports.

The usual spectator sports are maintained, including football, basketball, baseball, tennis, golf and track.

Proof of the success of the athletic program is shown by many winning teams.

The student trained in home economics is particularly well equipped to meet the problems faced by every homemaker-citizen.

The home economics department, under the direction of Miss Corian Stambaugh, presented a program of etiquette for a freshman convocation in February.

The Home Ec Club members were hostesses for a luncheon for their mothers on Mother's Day. They were also hostesses in the Heart Saver Kitchen in downtown Evansville to help in the Heart Drive.

ONE OF the professors who accepts all the responsibility of a department is Corian Stambaugh in the home economics department. With many interested students and a great deal of personal concern for the profession, much has been accomplished under the direction of the single professor.

STUDENTS WHO qualify to be honored as deserving special recognition are those who have been on the dean's list more times than anyone else. For this picture those who had been on the dean's list five or more times were chosen. Two of the students, Frances Huff Thompson and

SPECIAL RECOGNITION

Paul Welborn, have been on the dean's list 11 consecutive times. V. C. BAILEY, Guy Marchant, and Ralph Coleman, members of the mathematics department ponder over a problem which momentarily seems to have them baffled. The curve on the board looks like the grading curve. Mr. Marchant must give B's to all mathematics students.

MATHEMATICS

One purpose of the mathematics department is to provide the basic training which is so essential as a tool in many professional fields. The courses in mathematics are offered to provide the student a mastery of the subject matter, along with the idea that the student may develop discipline in exact thinking and reasoning.

The department plans its courses to meet the needs of the students preparing to teach mathematics or science on the elementary or high school level.

For most of the clubs and organizations the 1951-52 school year has been unusually active.

The International Relations Club held a "Festival of the Nations" all-campus dance in March. Sigma Alpha Iota was hostess for the State Day convention held here in November.

January featured the first meeting of the Future Teachers of America. Mr. Ralph Becker was guest speaker at a breakfast.

The Mid-Winter Concert of the music department featured a scene from the seldom heard opera "Prince Igor."

Kappa Chi sponsored the play "Everyman" in March. It was presented in collaboration with the Thespians and was staged in the arena style. The members used the theatre as a means of teaching a moral lesson.

The Thespians presented a successful season of theatre at its best. In "The Gorilla" they presented a popular mystery-comedy, "Medea" presented a classical drama and in "R. U. R." they presented an experimental drama in the expressionistic field.

The physics department has grown over the years to its present position as one of the best equipped departments on campus. Under the expert tutelage of Professor Robert Artman, the physics department makes use of the six laboratories set up in the Engineering Building.

In addition to the physics major, the department also offers a major in electronics engineering. Sigma PiSigma, national physics society, recognizing our growth, has organized a chapter here to give an added incentive for further work in this department.

The end of the fall term saw the departure of James F. Sears on a two year leave of absence. He has undertaken a special assignment with the Central Intelligence Department of the national government. Harold Willis returned to the department in the spring quarter after his leave of absence to resume his teaching responsibilities.

"Battles" include all the different types of sports on campus. Contrary to the feeling that prevails in real battles, a friendly atmosphere of sportsmanship is underlying. Throughout the school year, contests with varying degrees of enthusiasm and interest are scheduled for student participation and backing.

Football, like real battles, is "fought," not only against the opposing team, but also against the weather. Many times the weather is nearly as great a handicap in winning as the playing opponents.

Basketball, restricted almost entirely to the winter quarter, is not nearly as rough. The game requires a lot of physical stamina but the rules prohibit football tactics. Fewer participants in basketball naturally make fewer opportunities to use "battle-field methods." Enthusiasm is, perhaps, at a higher level in basketball because of the greater frequency of scoring and the more frequent opportunities for each team to lead.

As the year proceeds, interest and deeprooted enthusiasm change in the spring from sports to love or something. Concern over the results dwindles.

In the spring only the fancy of a few students turns to baseball or golf. Although generally successful, the "battles" do not interest as many people.

SOCIAL SCIENCES

WEEKLYFACULTY luncheon conferences are a feature of the business and economics department. Seated around a table in the Union Building cafeteria between luncheon and the business session are: (left to right) Trygve K. Aageson, Miss Agnes Tompkins, James Julian, Dean Long, Claude H. Slusher, William Affolder, and Lawrence Anderson.

BUSINESS, ECONOMICS

The department of business and economics is now organized to provide an opportunity for students to specialize in these major fields: accounting, finance and insurance, management, marketing and secretarial science. The specialization consists of one full year of work in the basic general business courses needed by every business man. In addition, one full year is given to the specialized courses in the chosen field.

The business department was organized in 1923 and since has become one of the more outstanding departments.

LAWRENCE ANDERSON, associate professor of economics in the business and economics department, doesn't seem to find enough data in the textbooks for his classes. Here Mr. Anderson is shown in his home reading the front page of the Wall Street Journal. The paper seems to have taken him from the open book lying on his desk.

PROFESSORS AS well as students have duties other than academic assignments. Here William Affolder, assistant professor of economics takes time out to water the flowers. Some people stand to water the flowers - others do it from an easy chair.

EVANSVILLE'S ACES score their winning touchdown against the Eastern Maroons, in Evansville's Reitz Bowl. Most of the game was played near the mid-strip. Jerry David's toe proved very valuable against the Maroons as the final score was 7-6.

THE DECREASE in faculty members did not necessarily hamper the effectiveness of the education department. Here Lucille Jones, head of the department, holds a conference with her two assistants, Wilberta Edgington and Leland Moon in an attempt to solve some pertinent problem.

EDUCATION

Throughout the years the teachers on the elementary and secondary level have been graduated from our education department to fill jobs in this city, surrounding communities, and the Tristate area. This, however, does not mean that all education graduates have confined themselves to this locality. Many have acquired teaching positions in other states.

Because of the ever increasing number of students enrolled in the nation's school system, there is an increasing demand for good teachers. The education department is constantly striving to produce the best teachers possible.

SCHOOL SPIRIT runs high when the Purple Aces play the homecoming football game. Last year the game was played at Bosse Field and this year at Reitz Bowl. On November 3 the Aces tangled with Eastern Kentucky and added to all the enthusiasm of a homecoming celebration by defeating the Kentuckians 7-6. This action shot shows the Aces in the light colored suits and the opponents in the dark suits. The play in progress here is not clearly evident.

Through the years the history and political science department has played a major roll in giving the students the background and an understanding conception of world affairs. With the present crisis, a better understanding of the heritage of our democratic system is of most importance.

Under the leadership of Dr. David and the assistant professors, the department provides students with the knowledge necessary to enter the various fields for which history and political science are beneficial.

PROFESSORS OF the history and political science department pause to check the data on the bulletin board just outside of Dr. David's office. Members of the faculty are: (left to right) Alfred Rigsbee, Wade David, head of the department, and William, R. Brandon.

MARY LANNERT, Alpha Omicron Pi candidate and a graduating senior, was chosen queen of the homecoming football celebration on November 3. Election of the candidate for the queenship is by the student body in the Union. Members of her court were Jo Freshley, Ethel Hamilton, Rovella Hinton, and Billie Jean Miller.

PSYCHOLOGY

Psychology is the science of behavior and adjustment of human nature in varied situations and environments. Its aims are to stimulate, predict, control, measure and improve human behavior insofar as the changes in the individual and the environment permit and express a need. The department of psychology offers courses to those who are interested in the subject, in themselves, in human efficiency and happiness or who want to major in the subject with the view of entering the teaching, in-dustrial, business, clinical or any other occupation where psychological training is essential.

In addition to its teaching functions the department makes its services available to those who desire help on interest and problems that are personal, social, educational, clinical or who would just like to talk about things that might not be distinctly psychological in nature.

Through its head the department renders services to business and industry.

Nash, Head Coach Arad McCutchan, Carl Neidermeier, Roscoe Bivin, and Billy Joe (Red) Walters; (third row) Joe Schwitz, Dave Crumbaker, Charles Daum, Bernie Connolly, Jim Wilkinson, Bill Hobgood, Bob Northerner, Gene Bayer, and Keith Combs.

Of the courses in sociology, criminology, race relations, the family, juvenile delinquency, and social work are popular choices with students. The department sponsors student tours to Indiana prisons for men and women, and the juvenile reform schools. Each summer they sponsor one or more extended tours of the United States and Mexico.

Several senior sociology students work in the local Welfare Office and Neighborhood House for extended case study experience.

JAMES MORLOCK, head of the department of sociology, pauses momentarily from the task at hand for the LinC photographer. Everette Walker was the only other professor in the department during the year but he is on a temporary leave of absence to study for his doctorate at Indiana University.

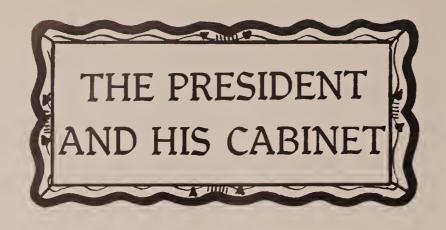

SOCIOLOGY

ROSCOE BIVIN, outstanding freshman center for the Aces during the last season, hails from Owensboro, Kentucky. He was hailed by the sportswriters as one of the most outstanding freshman centers to make an appearance in this area for some time. His play shows he is worthy of the title.

RAY BAWEL, a senior basketball forward and football end, was a four letterman from Boonville. Ray showed the same drive on the basketball court as he displayed on the football field. When Northerner was injured at the last of the season, Ray took over as acting captain and high scorer. His rebound work was outstanding in many games.

Seniority with any organization is to be desired. The six officers of the administrative staff together have a total of a century of service since being hired by the college.

All the degrees for these leaders were conferred by colleges and universities in the Midwest or the northeast.

Members of the administrative staff of the college function a great deal behind the scenes. Their job is to establish a policy of operation and then co-operate completely to follow it through. Each has a great responsibility in his respective job.

Some of the staff members have double duties in that they also carry a teaching load. Several, however, have a large enough job to require full time work with no spare time to teach classes.

The heads on the administrative staff are the president, the dean of the college, the director of adult education, the director of student personnel services, the business manager, and the director of public relations.

Each of these heads have under their supervision a varied number of assistants, some on the faculty level and others who are responsible only for a specific phase of the entire job. On the next stratum are other assistants to the heads on the staff.

DAVE CRUMBAKER, long shot artist for the Purple Aces, was chosen many times by Coach McCutchan to start the games. Dave is a sophomore but this is his first year on the team. The invaluable experience gained this year will pay dividends in his play next year.

KEITH COMBS, a guard and a frequent member of the starting five, is from Boonville, Indiana. The fans know Combs for his aggressiveness. His high scoring has added to the scoring punch of the Purple Aces for the past two seasons.

At the head of every organization is a leader who forsees the obstacles of the future. Lincoln B. Hale is that leader at Evansville College.

The post-war completion of a phase of the building program is evidence of much work along these lines.

Another important function of the office and the leader is to serve as aliaison officer for the school to the students and the community.

Literally all plans for campus activities are routed through the office of the president for approval before further steps are taken.

MARY M. CLIFFORD assistant to the president, University of Delaware; University of Richmond.

LINCOLN B. HALE, president of the college, B.D., Yale University; M.A., Yale University; Ph.D., Yale University; LL.D., Vincennes University.

Bob Northerner, senior forward, was captain and the high scorer of the Purple Aces this winter. Bob tallied 256 points before an auto accident knocked him out of his last seven games. Northerner, a product of Evansville Central has been a mainstay on the college varsity for the past two years.

UNDERGRADUATE INSTRUCTION

VIRGINIA WHIT-LEDGE, assistant librarian, B.A., University of Kentucky; B.S. L.S., University of Kentucky. Basically the purpose of the college is to help the student acquire knowledge and skills by instruction. This instruction, under the direction of the dean of the college, is administered to the students by the faculty by departments. The dean works with department heads to lay the plans and schedules for all the classes. Each department functions under the head of the department with other professors assisting him in the instruction.

The library, a valuable aid in the work of instruction, provides students with a means of furthering their courses under their own initiative. Librarians, in this sense, are officers of instruction who function by assisting students to locate materials.

The music department, the only department of the college which gives individual instruction, operates with a slightly different organizational set-up. The secretary-registrar of the music department also enrolls students of music who are not in college.

leading the yells at the ball games. In general, they are in charge of the school spirit. It is their unofficial obligation to see that students back the college by being present at the games to back the teams.

Functioning on the staff as the director of community services, Dean Long also serves as vice president of the college. The two more important functions in filling this positionare the direction of the evening college with Marvin Hartig as the first assistant and the cooperative training program with Marquis Stigers in

The evening college has grown recently with restrictions on the time limit for the use of the G. I. Bill. An ever more important part is being played by the evening college because those are the only hours free for many people.

Almost as many people were registered in the evening college for the fall and winter quarters as were registered in the regular day college.

At present the cooperative training program provides for a student to go to college for two quarters and work the third quarter in industry on a full-time job. This program has financially come to the rescue of many students and provides at the same time a well rounded education for the graduate.

The student personnel service is exactly what the title says - a service for the student. The placement bureau, testing service, and the medical clinic are a few that are operating for the benefit of the student on campus.

The reading clinic has been revamped during this last year and is now better equipped to be of service to the student body. It is a welcome addition to the college curriculum.

Everette Walker, head of the department, left in January for Indiana University where he will complete work on a doctor's degree. Before leaving, however, Mr. Walker mapped out the plan to be followed for the rest of the year.

Through the office of public relations detailed information about all college activities is relayed to the community. These news items come to interested people through the alumni secretary and to the general public directly from the office of public relations.

Mail campaigns to people throughout the Tri-State are directed long in advance of a special event. A constant flow of news stories, sometimes as many as six or eight each day, go to the city newspapers and to the publications in surroundings towns.

Radio news also emanates from the office of public relations. An outlet for radio news was made possible and utilized to the fullest extent with the completion of the WEVC studios in the administration building.

At the helm of the college community, guiding it through the troubled waters of current times, is the president. He is ably assisted by his cabinet of advisors - the faculty members.

Wielders of the words of wisdom not only help the students discover new knowledge but offer sage advice to the president concerning formulation of new policies and continuation of old policies.

Although the cabinet is reduced in number this year as compared to recent years, the loss is partially offset by the arrival of the R O T C unit on campus. R O T C instructors quickly took places, as all military men do, in the cabinet of advisors to make Evansville College a smoother running, more efficiently operated institution of higher learning.

Population in the college community became stabilized during the past year. Much credit for this was given by the administration to the establishment of the Air Force R O T C unit on campus.

The population as depicted is divided into four major strata: seniors, underclassmen, faculty, and administrative staff. After serving the time and fulfilling the requirements, underclassmen become seniors and graduate from college. Achieving the status of a faculty member represents another step on the ladder to a position on the administrative staff. As the two higher rungs are reached more and more assistants play the all-important role necessary to keep the college community functioning smoothly.

Each component has a separate part to play in the community, and yet the community would not be a perfectly welded whole without any one component, no matter how minuscule it may be.

SPORTS FOR women students are the answer to several problems in that they provide an opportunity to break away from the textbooks and also fulfill a graduation requirement. During the early spring the classes were forced to practice in the women's gym. Students in the tennis class here are: Delores Jean Schaber, Katherine Darnell, Emma Green, Joan Graper, Lou Anne Inskeep, Marjorie Kappler, Imogene Merritt, Pat Slyker, Eloise Schmitz, Anita Hamby, Janice Morgan, Peggy Henshaw, Lee Wolzenski, Ida Stieler (faculty) is showing the students a special grip on the racket.

REQUIRING A slight amount of skill and strength, archery is also among the spring sports. The first venture outdoors this spring finds the class in physical education with their bows stretched and the arrows aimed at the bullseye. Students in the second year of archery are: (left to right) Lee Wolzenski, Joan Graper, Delores Jean Schaber, Lou Anne Inskeep, Eloise Schmitz, Anita Hamby, and Janice Morgan.

During the past athletic year of 1951-52, the Purple Aces encountered many difficulties.

Coach Don Ping's gridiron contingent enjoyed limited success during the '51 football season as the Aces marked up victories over arch rivals Murray State and Eastern Kentucky. Both rivals were defeated by one point. The Aces were undefeated at home winning all four games at Reitz Bowl.

The basketball proteges of Coach Arad Mc-Cutchan experienced a disastrous '51-52 cage season. Having graduated the entire '50-51 quintet, Coach McCutchan had very little material with which to start the past campaign.

Their record, however, indicates some excellent hardwood encounters. Many times the inexperience of the up-and-coming underclassmen proved too great an obstacle to overcome.

Baseball, track, and tennis games were scheduled too late to be recorded here but the interest of the squads promised worthwhile games.

CAN AMERICA ESCAPE SOCIALISM?

Some nations couldn't. And there are people in this country who are trying to push America down the same road.

They don't speak out for socialism openly—they know most Americans don't want it. Instead, they give persuasive reasons for the steps that lead to socialism.

There's one clue that will help you recognize this hidden socialism. It's the old line: "Let the federal government do it — or run it — or take it over — or own and operate it." When you hear that, look out.

For the more things the federal government runs, the closer we are to socialism — whether we want it or not — and the fewer rights and freedoms we have left for ourselves.

America can escape socialism — here's how you can help: Recognize the steps that lead to it. Help your friends and neighbors see the danger. And use your ballot wisely!

reference library for businessmen . . .

Deprive a doctor of his medical journals or a lawyer of his library and he is justifiably lost. No man could be expected to hold in his head all the knowledge necessary for these professions.

The same is true for businessmen. A good businessman doesn't have to know everything about business—but he must know where to go to find out. These "places to go" are bis reference library.

Start building your reference library by putting the twin volumes of "Keller-Crescent—Advertising and Printing," on your mental bookshelf.

Whenever you need advertising, sales counsel, or printed promotion, a call to Keller-Crescent will bring help to ease your work load.

For 65 years, Keller-Crescent has served the Midwest making life easier and more profitable for business executives. This complete Graphic Arts Service is ready to go to work for you at a moment's notice.
